Later he went out to Mrs. Linman's home and had her call up his wife. When Mrs. Geha appeared, bringing a selection of laces, the man leaped to bis feet, rushed to the door and fired three bullets into his victim's head and body. As Mrs. Geha rolled down the steps, he sent a builet into his own brain and died on the porch.

Three or four days ago Geha sent two bottles of liquor to the home of his wife. This was not touched, and today after the shooting the police at the request of Nicholas Geha, a son of the dead woman, took the bottles to the city chemist for analysis.
